THE Holomua of Saturday is of the opinion that Central Union church is looking for a pastor and looking for him hard. This may or may not be so, but everybody knows that if that "missionary church" wants a minister it has the money to hire one and presumably the grit to select one. It is, however, safe to assert that no royalist will be selected to fill the position, because no royalist since the revolution has been found, who, for twenty-four consecutive hours, could fill the anti-missionary requirements demanded by the Holomua.

ROYALIST TACTICS.

The statement that the friends of royalty feel their hopes grow less with the Republican victories announced with the last mail is certainly significant. "So long as the Democrats were in power," quotes a leading royalist paper, the hopes of Cleveland and royalty were at their best. It now seems rather unkind for the royalists of Hawaii, who still threaten terrible things through "legitimate means," upon every thing and every body in Hawaii, to also enter a covert threat against the people and Congress of the United States.

We had thought from the oft repeated allegations of the Royalist press, before the downfall of monarchy and the turn of the tide of popular feeling in the Great Republic, that nothing could stay the course of monarchical restoration, so great was the force of its own political inertia. The Government had been snatched from the hands of the defenders of monarchy by the treachery of American diplomacy; now American diplomacy is ridiculed openly. Was there ever such inconsistency? Probably never since the hour repeatedly passed when the "kingdom" might have been bartered for a poker chip.

The trouble is not with the alleged "oligarchy" of Hawaii, it never has been with either the rank or file back of the Republic. The real trouble of the political failure of the monarchy lies in the instability of native character, first and last,—first in their women, secondly in their men and thirdly and last in the children of the household, who in their home life have missed instruction in those traits, which would make success of either a monarchy or a Republic. That the monarchy has failed for these and similar causes none who has lived his "year and day" in Hawaii will deny. Subtract the purity of the family from the purity of the State and national failure is the inevitable result.

There is little need for either the religious or lay members of religious bodies in these islands to put an interrogation at this point of our national development and offer some theoretical remedy. There is, in fact, no remedy short of that which the necessities of revolution have already thrust upon us, that have opened up an entirely new field in matters of civil rights for the residents of these islands, irrespective of racial questions.

But the question of questions which is foremost in the minds of the citizens of these islands is not so much one of the racial position of political forces, or even racial prejudice, as it is one of financial and commercial self preservation. This question is greater to the merchants and planters of these eight islands than all the twaddle royalists can write about native rights, which, if the law of mortgages is carried out, would be considerably less than the imaginary patriotism daily alleged in their name, but about which the average native does nothing and cares less.

To allege once every twenty-four hours that the "missionaries" first and the Americans secondly are to blame for the downfall of the monarchy would be cowardly were its evident foreign and anti-American source not so well known. Suppose the half dozen foreigners who, by their own personal foolishness have made themselves the political laughing stock of all Republicans and most natives, should appear before the taxpayers of Hawaii upon their merits? Would it not be safe to assert they would be as quickly excluded from the councils of loyal natives as well as cautious republicans? Is it not a fact that the men who at the present moment are crying out most loudly against republicans and Republicanism are those who, if the chance offered, would be as false to monarchy, or any other form of government, if immediately dollars were not touched by their fingers? The mess of pottage mentioned in the ancient story would not be in it a little bit if a political birthright were at present offered to anti-republican journalists upon the streets of Honolulu.

But putting sarcasm aside the STAR does not quite clearly see where the policy of those pro-American dollar anti-missionary politicians comes in when it is remembered they propose to use an "English whip" upon the United States Congress, as well as upon the Republicans of Hawaii, who have almost to a man stood so strongly for annexation. If the point is to raise sympathy here it will prove futile; for the typical American like the average Englishman hates a coward only less than the journalist who talks through his hat without an offer to back his brag with corporal service. Hawaii has now arrived at a point of stability where the opponents of the Republic should either talk less or act more; if they refuse to do both they should be forced to accept an alternative as a matter of political policy to prove to the world the Republic is able to be her own defender.

As From His Cyclone Pill.

It was a tempestuous night on the Atlantic, and the great steamer with its precious freight of human lives was tossed about like a corked shell. The tremendous waves hurled themselves against the walls of steel, and dashing in impotent fury over the decks shook the leviathan from bow to stern. No one was visible about the ship, except such of the crew as necessity compelled to face the storm, and they were in imminent danger every moment. The passengers, in mortal terror, were huddled together in the cabin below. Just as a frightful blast had almost blown the ship off her beam ends, the officer of the deck saw a passenger stick his forehead up through a hatchway.

"Get back there!" yelled the officer.

"Say, cap," came an answering yell.

"Is the roof gone yet?"

"No. Get back there!"

"Have any of the walls give in yet?"

"No. Get back, I tell you!"

"Has the old woman or the children been blown out of the second story window yet?"

"Get back, I tell you! No."

"None of the neighbors been blown in through the shed roof yet?"

"No, no. I tell you get back down that hatchway, you blamed fool!" and the officer started for the passenger.

"Tain't so bad as I thought it was!" came a yell from the passenger dodged into the depths below and disappeared.

"Well, who in thunder was that?" asked the officer of the passer, who stood by.

"He's a right 'un," howled the passer.

Platonic Love a Myth.

Love between women and men was not invented for the entertainment of philosophers, but largely for domestic purposes, and if platonic love is to have anything better than a hazardous and unstable existence the conditions of it must be such that it may prosper without conflict with nature's more important ends. Thus we see why platonic friendships between young people who might marry do not endure. Such couples get married, and their friendship merges into a more durable sentiment, or else one of them marries some one else, and then it lapses. At least it should lapse, for if it does not, it not only militates against peace in a family, but it tends to keep the unmarried platonist from going about his business and finding himself a mate according to nature's design. Every marriageable man besides his husband that any woman absorbs involves the waste of some other woman's opportunities, and nature hates waste with a proverbial antipathy.—Scribner's.

Matrimony.

What a pity it is that our girls are brought up to regard marriage as almost as inevitable as death! It handicaps them from the start in their intercourse with men. While they always have the feeling of being on parade for inspection there can be no naturalness or simplicity. If girls were taught to regard matrimony as possible, but not inevitable—taught also that a career in which work, with achievement, is possible to a woman; that life without matrimony may still be a life of usefulness and happiness;—I fancy there would be more ease of manner in the social relations of men and women and more beneficial friendships between them.—New York Recorder.

Advertising That Paid.

It has been asked, "Does advertising pay?" A German journal, the Mallener Nachrichten, replies to this question by giving the following fact, the authenticity of which it guarantees: A person advertised that he would pay $5 marks to the sender of the largest potato. In less than 15 days the clever advertiser found himself in possession of as many sacks full of the very finest potatoes, which, after paying the $5 marks promised for the largest example, might be reckoned a very profitable speculation.

Almost Blind
Inflamed Eyes and Running Sores
The Success of Hood's Cures
Great Rejoicing—A Perfect Cure.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass."

"I feel it a duty to state what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I was almost blind, being compelled to stay in a darkened room on account of inflammation of the eyes. I also suffered with running sores on my body. I was in terrible condition. My mother tried every thing she knew about and I was attended by two doctors but without helping me. Finally Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I got better. The inflammation left my eyes and the sores healed, and the result was that

I became stronger, and was restored to perfect health. At that time I was only twelve years old; now I am nineteen and I have not since been troubled

THE NEW WAUKEGAN BARBED WIRE.

Made only by Washburn & Moen Mfg. Co.

We have been appointed Agents for the above Company, and have just received per Steamer "KEACHU" the first shipment of this famous barbed wire. We sell the "Waukegan" 4 Point with barbs 3 in. apart, and it measures 16 1/2 ft. to the pound. You can't build a fence with any other make of barbed wire as cheap as you can with "Waukegan."

Take the following makes for instance, all 4 point, barbs 3 in. apart:

N. and M. 13.30 ft. to 1 lb. or 7.84 per cent. in favor of Waukegan.

Baddock Wire Co., 12.62 ft. to 1 lb. "30.75 " " " "

Rose, 12.44 " " " "32.64 " " " "

Rothing Co., 11.29 " " " "46.15 " " " "

Cleveland, 11.83 " " " "36.48 " " " "

Indiana Wire Fence Co., 12.87 ft. to 1 lb. or 28.21 per cent. " " "

Burnell, 13.77 " " " "19.85 " " " "

Waukegan Barbed Wire is as strong as the strongest, contains just as many barbs to the rod, and yet weighs less per rod than any other style of barbed wire.

This result is accomplished by using a half round wire in the barb, instead of a full round wire as in all other barbed wires; then it is twisted out once around one of the main wires, thus saving the weight of additional twists. This wire is thoroughly galvanized, something much needed in this climate.

We also sell a special wire stretcher and galvanized steel staples for Waukegan Wire.
